Morocco has announced the withdrawal of its forces from a U.N. buffer zone in the disputed Western Sahara territory, where for months they had been in a standoff with troops from the Polisario independence movement.

The military moves last year were one of the most tense in recent years between Morocco and Polisario, which declared an independent republic in the desert land in the 1970s and fought a guerrilla war with Morocco until a 1991 ceasefire.

The standoff in Guerguerat began last year ...

The United States of America will continue to stand with its closet ally in North Africa, Morocco. We support Morocco's sovereignty over the so called "Western Sahara". Morocco has long been fighting the war against terror and we do not need anymore Islamic and uneducated rebels to control that part of North Africa. Long live the bilateral relations between the US and Morocco.

Spanish and Arabic are the languages of Western Sahara therefore, we need to work on these languages and cultures.

Euronews forgot to mention that Western Sahara has been part of Morocco for centuries before the Spaniards settled there. Seems like an important detail if you ask me...
